You are being invited to participate in a research study on climate change perceptions. This study is being conducted by Dr. Viktoria Spaiser and Dr. Kris Dunn from the University of Leeds.

The purpose of this research is to study how different people understand and respond to information about current events. Your participation will involve completing the online survey and watching a short video that will appear during the survey. You will be asked to share information about your perceptions of climate change, your personal traits and characteristics, and answer some questions about your opinions on social and political issues. The approximate time to complete the survey, including watching the video on climate change, is 15 minutes.

There are no anticipated physical or psychological risks to you when participating in this study. You will not be asked to share sensitive information on this survey. However, it is possible that you will feel uncomfortable while responding to some of the questions about climate change.

Your participation in this study is entirely voluntary and you can decide to withdraw from the survey at any point up until the completion of the last question. Should you wish to withdraw from the survey after completion, you will be able to contact YouGov via email (political@yougov.com) and request that your data is not shared with the University of Leeds. You can do so up to 24 hours after completion.

Your participation in this study will remain confidential, and only anonymised data will be collected and published. We will minimise any risks by not asking any questions that would facilitate personal identification. Further information is available via the University of Leeds Privacy Notice (<https://ris.leeds.ac.uk/privacy-notice/>). All information will be kept confidential through the use of number codes and password protection. Links between survey responses and anonymised identifying information (i.e. your participation number) will be severed as soon as possible and no record of these links will be retained. The results of this study may be published in scientific literature or presented at a professional meeting. In all instances, group averages will be presented and your individual contribution to the dataset will not be identified.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Viktoria Spaiser via email at v.spaiser@leeds.ac.uk.

If you consent to participate in this research, please tick the following box.
